Molto Bene, Hightstown's Newest Restaurant and Italian Market, to Celebrate with Grand Opening

Hightstown, NJ (January 29, 2010) – Local residents and new business owners, Peter and Val Adamo, are very excited to officially open the doors to Molto Bene Caffè y Mercato Italiano on Saturday, February 20th, 2010 from 12 - 4 pm. Please join them for the ribbon cutting where you will be able to enjoy live music from local guitarist Daniel Trent, and complimentary samples of the Molto Bene Caffè menu.

Owner & Chef Peter Adamo began his studies at the Culinary Education Center of Monmouth County where he learned the fundamentals of cooking and earned his degree in the Culinary Arts. Peter refined his skills working in various fine-dining establishments focusing on European style cuisine, include Le Mont Carmel in Chambery, France where Peter trained under the Executive Chef Yves Vincent as well as Mediterra in Princeton.

Peter states, "Our idea is to open a specialty market and café that will offer the historic downtown of Hightstown and its surrounding areas the opportunity to discover a vast selection of Italian delicacies. Our market will offer an assortment of Italian meats and cheeses, delicious sandwiches, pizzas and salads along with select pastas and sauces for an easy do-it-yourself dinner. We also want the café to be a socially vibrant networking place where locals can relax while savoring premium-quality coffee and gourmet cuisine. I'm very excited about this new venture and I look forward meeting the residents of Hightstown and sharing my knowledge and passion of the specialty Italian ingredients we feature at Molto Bene."
